

A History of Proactive Persistence: Extension's Approach to the COVID-19 Pandemic & New Realities

Emerging in the early 1900's at a time when the US faced multiple challenges, Cooperative Extension showed itself to be an invaluable instrument of change. Learn how America's farmers, ranchers and foresters have fared compared to those in other countries because of Extension worker effort to address the needs of local communities of service. How did changes brought on by the pandemic impact Extensions, and how will they be integrated into our new normal?

Roy Beckford, PhD
*University of Vermont
Cooperative Extension*

Hanna Carter, PhD
*MaineHealth
Cooperative Extension*

Join Zoom Meeting

<https://uvmcom.zoom.us/j/95651899729>

Friday, April 22
noon - 1pm

Please consider joining us. For more information, contact Sheila.Clifford-Bova@med.uvm.edu